CHAPTER XXV.

THE route for the first mile and a half lay up a steep hill, where the men were much exposed and suffered terribly. After that for three miles or so it wound in and out between the hills and through forests of ash and black oak, which afforded some little shelter. The storm raged with unabated fury, and the progress of the little army was very slow. The men were in good spirits, however, and they cheerfully toiled on over the roads covered with deep drifts, bearing as best they might the driving tempest. It was 6 in the morning when they reached the little village of Birmingham, where the two columns divided, General Greene's column, accompanied by Washington, taking the longer or inland road, called the Pennington road, which entered the town from the northeast, while Sullivan's column followed the lower road, which entered the town from the west by way of a bridge over the Assumpink creek. As Greene had a long detour to make, Sullivan had orders to wait where the crossroad from Howland's Ferry intersected his line of march until the first column had time to effect the longer circuit, so that the two attacks might be delivered together. General Washington himself rode in front of the first column. It was still frightfully cold.

About daybreak the general spied an officer on horseback toiling through the snowdrifts toward him. As the horseman drew nearer he recognized young Martin.

"What is it now, sir?"

"General Sullivan says that the storm has rendered many of his muskets useless by wetting the priming and powder. He wishes to know what is to be done, sir."

"Return instantly and tell him he must use the bayonet. When he hears the firing he is to advance and charge immediately. The town must be taken, and I intend to take it."

"Very good, sir," said the young man, saluting.

"Can you get through the snow in time?"

"Yes, sir," he replied promptly. "I can get through anything if your excellency will give the order."

The general smiled approvingly. It was evident that young man's first lesson had been a good one. His emphasis, he was glad to see, had not been misplaced.

When Martin rejoined Sullivan's column, which had been halted at the crossroads, the men who had witnessed his departure were eagerly waiting his return. As he repeated the general's reply they began slipping the bayonets over the muzzles of their guns without orders. So eager were they to advance that Sullivan had difficulty in restraining them until the signal was given. Such were their temper and spirit that in the excitement of the moment they recked little of the freezing cold and the hardships of their terrible march. The retreating army was not last on the offensive. They were about to attack now, and no attack is so dangerous as that delivered by men from whom the compelling necessity of retreat has been suddenly removed.

It was about 8 o'clock in the morning when they came in sight of the town. The village of Trenton then contained about 100 houses, mostly frame, scattered along both sides of two long streets and chiefly located on the west bank of the Assumpink, which here bent sharply to the north before it flowed into the Delaware. The Assumpink was fordable in places at low water, but it was spanned by a substantial stone bridge, which gave on the road followed by Sullivan, at the west end of the village. Washington came

He recognized young Martin, down from the north and offered the village from the other side. About half a mile from the edge of the town the column led by him came abreast of an old man chopping wood in a farmyard by the roadside.

"Which is the way to the Hessian picket?" said the general.

"I don't know," replied the man sullenly.

"You may tell," said Captain Forest, riding near the general at the head of his battery, "for this is General Washington."

The man's expression altered at once. "God bless and prosper you!" he cried eagerly, raising his hands to heaven. "There! The picket is in that house yonder, and the sentry stands near that tree."

stepped out of the house by chance and gave the alarm in great surprise. The picket rushed out, and the men lined up in the road in front of the column, the thick snow preventing them from forming a correct idea of the approaching force. The advance guard of the Continentals, led by Captain William A. Washington and Lieutenant James Monroe, instantly swept down upon them. After a scattered volley, which hurt no one, they fled precipitately back toward the village, giving the alarm and rallying on the main guard, posted near the center of the town, which had been speedily drawn up, to the number of seventy-five men. Meanwhile Sullivan's men, with Stark at the head, had routed the pickets on the other road in the same gallant style. This picket was composed of about fifty Hessian chasseurs and twenty English light dragoons, under command of Lieutenant Grot-hausen of the chasseurs. They all fled so precipitately that they did not stop to alarm the brigade which they had been stationed to protect, but rapidly galloped down the road and, crossing the bridge over the Assumpink, made good their escape toward Bordentown. Grave suspicions of cowardice attached thereafter to their commanding officer. Had Ewing performed his part in the plan the bridge would have been held and they would have been captured with the rest. Stark's men, followed by the rest of Sullivan's division, were now pushed on rapidly for the town, and the cheers of the New England men were distinctly heard by Washington and his men on the main road. The main guard on the upper road, almost as completely surprised as the other by the dashing onslaught of the Americans, made another futile attempt at resistance to Greene's column, but they soon fell back in great disorder upon the main body.

It was broad daylight now, and the violence of the storm had somewhat abated. In the town, where the firing had been heard, the drums of the three regiments were rapidly beating the assembly. Colonel Kahl was in bed sleeping off the effects of his previous night's indulgences when he heard the commotion. Jumping from the bed and running rapidly to the window, still undressed, he thrust out his head and asked the acting brigade adjutant, Biel, who was hurriedly galloping past, what it was all about. There was a total misapprehension on all sides even at this hour as to the serious nature of the attack, so the confused colonel, satisfied with Biel's surmise that it was a raid, ordered him to take a company and go to the assistance of the main guard in the supposition that it was only a skirmishing party and never dreaming of a general attack. Nevertheless he then dressed rapidly and, running down to the street, mounted his horse, which had been brought around. The three regiments which comprised his brigade and command were already forming. They were the regiment Rahl, the regiment Von Lossburg and the regiment Von Knyphausen. At this moment the advance party and the main guard came running through the streets in great confusion, crying that the whole rebel army was down upon them. The regiment Rahl and the regiment Von Lossburg at once began retreating to an apple orchard back of the town, firing ineffectively in their excitement, as they ran, from behind the houses, at the head of the column which had now appeared in the street, while the regiment Von Knyphausen, under the command of Major Von Dechow, the second in command of the brigade, separated from the two others and made for the bridge over the Assumpink.

Two Children Drowned.

Bradford, Pa., July 7.—Charles Rator and George White, aged respectively ten and nine years, were drowned last evening while playing on a raft in an old reservoir near South avenue.

Senator Beveridge, who has been visiting President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, has left for a vacation of several weeks in the depths of the Maine woods. The senator will not return to Indianapolis until after the hot weather of August.

Finally Got a Quorum.

Havana, July 7.—The house of representatives had a quorum yesterday for the first time since congress convened, April 4. The radical congress members joined their comrades of the moderate party in bringing about this result. The house approved the credentials of thirteen new soldier congressmen. The moderates will control the organization of the house. Unless a compromise be effected, however, the deadlock will be resumed after the passing of the soldiers' pay bill and other urgent legislation.

Parole for Elias Owen.

Bradford, Ind., July 7.—Governor Durbin has paroled Elias Owen, who has been serving a life sentence in the prison for the murder of James Biggs, June 23, 1893, in the streets of Clay City, this county. He was sentenced in the circuit court here Jan. 24, 1894.

A PLATFORM FIGHT

Mr. Bryan Contests For His Principles On Floor of Convention.

LEADING FORLORN HOPE

The "Reorganizers" Seem to Be In the Saddle, but the Nebraskan Will Die Game.

Erstwhile "Peerless Leader" Given a Bitter Pill When Cleveland Was Cheered.

St. Louis, July 7.—The Democratic national convention is this afternoon engaged in making up a platform of principles upon which the party will wage its fight during the campaign thus opening. That there will be a contest over the adoption of certain plank agreed to in the meeting of the resolutions committee this morning is certain, and much oratory will result. Mr. Bryan will lead his forces in the debate on the floor while Senator Bailey of Texas will lead the forces of the "conservatives." To Mr. Bailey had fallen the choice of the executive committee for permanent chairman, but in view of his preparation for the platform debate, his declination to accept this important position was accepted and Hon. Champ Clark, congressman from Missouri, the only other man considered by the committee, was elevated to the chairmanship. Mr. Clark's address on opening the convention today was given the most earnest attention.

BRYAN SNUBBED

"Peerless Leader" Unnoticed and Cleveland Cheered to the Echo.

St. Louis, July 7.—In a session lasting two hours and fifty minutes yesterday afternoon, one striking incident overshadowed all other proceedings. That was the enthusiastic and prolonged cheering which greeted the name of Grover Cleveland. While the outburst which greeted the name of the former Democratic president before its last syllable had fallen from the lips of the temporary chairman was noteworthy in itself, it was magnified by contrast with the greetings accorded the actual persons of men who stood for all that has been opposed to Mr. Cleveland within the party during the last eight years.

James K. Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the national committee, went onto the platform and took his seat unnoticed. Practically no greeting was given him when he faced the convention with a cold hand. There were other stalwart lieutenants of the Nebraskan who entered the hall unacclaimed, and lastly Mr. Bryan himself, who, for the first time during the two national campaigns, was greeted with silence. Eight minutes after the gavel fell the twice-named candidate of his party passed in the main entrance and sought his seat unheralded and unheeded. A few moments later he arose and pushed his way to a seat nearer the aisle, where, standing a moment to give greetings to friends, he was caught sight of and applauded. But the measure of applause was but a ripple when compared to the storm called forth by Cleveland's name.

Listening attentively to the Democratic doctrine laid down by Temporary Chairman Williams, the conservatives found occasion for the first demonstration when reference was made to the record of former President Cleveland. All the shackled party interest which had lain dormant through two national campaigns was released as by the touch of a trigger. The name of Cleveland was echoed from a thousand throats. Hats, handkerchiefs, fans and arms were waved, delegates and spectators stood on their chairs, and the last semblance of order was turned into confusion which convention officials were powerless to subdue.

While the outburst was at its height, Mr. Bryan's following attempted to convert the demonstration into applause for their leader. The name of Bryan was yelled lustily, but in vain. Shouts of "Grover" and "Cleveland" was renewed and the Bryan following was hissed. The greatest significance was attached to the showing made by the conservatives. Their absolute control of the convention is no longer doubted, even by those who have heretofore declined to be convinced. The nomination of Judge Parker for president is assured beyond any possibility of defeat.

The great Coliseum where the convention is being held, is admirably adapted to accommodate the surging crowds which pressed for admission as soon as the doors were opened. Before 11 o'clock the spectators' seats began to fill, although the space on the floor allotted to the delegates and their alternates remained barren until noon, when the session was called to order. That the duty of decorating the immense hall was entrusted to skilled hands was apparent from the first glimpse of the interior. The general effect is a mammoth arched canopy of buff, ribbed and fringed in white, with walls formed of alternate strips of red, white and blue. The balconies were dressed in white bunting, gracefully caught up every few yards. Medallions bearing the coats of arms of the states are placed about the balconies at regular intervals, but the only flowers used were in the setting of the platform. One of the crowning features is an immense furl flag which is pendant from the center of the roof. The flag will be dropped into prominence when a nomination for president has been made. The standards locating the state delegations are among the striking decorations. Painted, ringed and lettered after the manner of old-fashioned railroad semaphores, the standards extend several feet above the heads of the delegates. They are fastened to rods of iron which are firmly fastened to the floor so that they cannot be dislodged in moments of enthusiasm.

By the time a majority of the delegates had arrived at the Coliseum every breath of cool outside air had been absorbed. Fans were waving vigorously in all parts of the hall. Coats were not long in coming off, collars and ties were loosened and the picture was that of a shirt-sleeve convention. The day was oppressively warm outside and in the hall was uncomfortable to the extreme. Windows but half opened and the roof ventilators had been sacrificed in beautifying the interior of the hall.

Exactly on the hour of noon Chairman Jones called the convention to order. The call was read and prayer delivered. A committee was named to escort Mr. Williams to the platform to assume the temporary chairmanship. Then it occurred to Chairman Jones that the band stationed under the roof opposite the platform had not been heard. He looked about for the signal station, but its location had been lost amid the decorations. Officials gesticulated and shouted to the leader, but to no purpose. He was waiting for a bell signal that never came. A courier was sent to the bandstand, but by the time he had arrived Mr. Williams had started to speak. Consequently not a note of music was heard in the hall until a short time before the convention adjourned for the day.

Swimming Hole Claims Many.

Indianapolis, July 7.—While swimming with five companions in Fall Creek near the Monon bridge Oliver Alexander, aged eighteen years, was drowned. Young Alexander is the twelfth to drown this year while bathing.

"UNDER THE OAKS"

Republican Party Celebrates Semi-Centennial of Its Organization.

SIGNIFICANT MEETING

In a Beautiful Oak Grove at Jackson, Mich., Scenes of Fifty Years Ago Were Recalled.

Among Those Present Were a Number Who Voted For Nominee of First Convention.

Jackson, Mich., July 7.—Nearly 10,000 people assembled in a picturesque oak grove in the outskirts of this city to celebrate the semi-centennial anniversary of the birth of the Republican party. It was in a smaller oak grove at the opposite end of Jackson, that fifty years ago yesterday the first state convention that was held under the name of "Republican" took place. Here the initial Republican state ticket was then placed in nomination.

Secretary of State John Hay was the orator of the day and United States Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, Republican candidate for vice president, and Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of the national house of representatives, were also present and delivered addresses. On the platform was seated a representative delegation of the Republican leaders of this state, headed by United States Senators R. A. Alger and J. C. Burrows. Senator Burrows presided over the afternoon session and Senator Alger was the last speaker of the afternoon.

Behind the speaker's platform rose a wall of bright-colored bunting with immense pictures of John C. Fremont, the first Republican nominee for president, and Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican to occupy the White House, fastened to it. Straight ahead and to the right and left over the heads of the assembled multitude towered scores of splendid oaks. In the front rows of the audience were nearly a thousand men who voted for John C. Fremont for president, some of whom had participated in the original "under the oaks" convention fifty years ago. To this venerable company special reverence was paid, and when two of their number, in their enthusiasm, climbed high up among the branches of two oaks to improve their view, the audience was frantic with approval and delight.

The city of Jackson was in holiday attire, with throngs of visitors constantly passing up and down the streets.

MANY CANDIDATES

The "Running Mate" Question Excites but Little Interest.

St. Louis, July 7.—The vice presidential situation was tersely stated by Major G. V. Menzies of Indiana, himself a vice presidential possibility, when he said: "We will finish the nomination of a presidential candidate before we go to warring about the second place on the ticket. Like the lamented father of the immortal Huckleberry Finn, our motto is 'meat first, spoon vittles afterwards.'"

There was enough of gossip to satisfy, but aside from the movement in behalf of George Turner of Washington, there was no well-defined vice presidential boom. The Indiana delegation was divided in sentiment as to what its position would be if the nomination were to go to that state. John W. Kern and B. F. Shively were being mildly booied by the Indians, as was also Major G. V. Menzies. In addition to the men already named there was in the various delegations talk of Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, David Rose of Wisconsin, Samuel Alschuler, a former Illinois gubernatorial candidate, James B. Kilbourn of Ohio, Governor Dockery of Missouri, and Edward C. Wall of Wisconsin.

Children Caught on Crossing.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 7.—A passenger train on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad last evening near Brandon, ran down a rig, killing three children of Lewis Skogme, instantly killing two boys aged eight and ten, and fatally injuring a girl aged about twelve.

Kidney Diseases
Worst of All.

How to Cure These Dangerous and Fatal Maladies.

No one can afford to let a kidney disease continue unchecked a moment after he has discovered its presence. This is especially true of Bright's disease, the most dangerous and fatal of them all. The treacherous manner in which it attacks its victims enables it to become firmly established before its presence is discovered. Dr. Colwell's Egyptian Kidney and Bladder Cure never fails, and is guaranteed to cure inflammation of the kidneys, congestions, Bright's disease in its early stages, brick dust deposits, cloudy urine, pains in the back and kidneys, retention and incontinence of urine, bed wetting, diseases of the bladder and urinary tract, sexual weakness in both men and women, restoring to health and imparting to the genito-urinary organs renewed vitality and vigor. "Your Dr. Colwell's Egyptian Kidney and Bladder Cure is a most excellent remedy as I know from my personal experience with it. I have had serious kidney and bladder trouble with considerable pain. This was a repetition of trouble a year back. I tried one bottle, and the relief was so great, I ordered two bottles of you by express, and am glad to say that I am all right now and recommend this medicine fully to any one suffering with these difficulties." Truly yours, W. F. Black, Cleveland, O.

UNDER THE OAKS

Many Indiana Republicans Attend the Celebration at Jackson.

Indianapolis, July 7.—Many prominent Indiana Republicans participated yesterday in the celebration of the party's golden jubilee "Under the Oaks" at Jackson, Mich., where the Republican party was organized fifty years ago. Senator Fairbanks was one of the speakers, as were Secretary of State Hay, who was Abraham Lincoln's private secretary; Speaker Cannon, and others of national reputation. It was at Jackson, in a grove of oak trees, that the first state convention acting under the name "Republican" was held on the 6th of July fifty years ago.

Continuing his reports of crop conditions, State Statistician Johnson gives out the further good news that Indiana's potato crop this year will be a record breaker. He says the crop all over the state is in finer condition than at the same date for years past, and that only unprecedented drought can prevent the farmers of the state from harvesting a crop of the tubers that for size and quality will break all records for the state. Mr. Johnson's corn report is still favorable, and he says that, now that the nights are growing warmer, nothing remains but a continuation of existing conditions to make the corn crop fully up to the average.

President Hugh McGowan of the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal company, in a statement issued yesterday, estimates that the interurban roads of Indiana handled during the last year two and a half millions of passengers in and out of Indianapolis, and says he believes this number will be increased during the present year to three and a half millions. Mr. McGowan goes further in his estimate, saying that it is his belief that next year the interurbans will handle 4,500,000 passengers, as people in the country and in the smaller towns are every year making freer use of the electric lines all over the state.

Many complaints are coming to State Game and Fish Commissioner Sweeney to the effect that sportsmen, farmers and others all over the state are violating the game law by killing squirrels out of season. The last legislature amended the game laws and among other amendments was one making the open season for squirrels to begin Aug. 1 instead of June 1, as it was formerly. Hundreds of squirrel hunters are not aware of this, and the killing of young squirrels is causing great complaint. Orders have been issued to deputy wardens to put a stop to the illegal hunting.

The conviction is growing among Republicans that the Democrats of Indiana will not be given both the vice presidential candidate and the national chairman, and that the chances are about even that they will get neither. It is pointed out that the Taggart forces are not even making claims at present, and that no great amount of importance seems to attach to the Kern boom for the second place on the ticket. With the state thus snubbed at the hands of the Democracy, it is affirmed, there will not be the slightest trouble in keeping it in line next fall.

D. M. Parry, who has just returned from New York, confirms the report that the Illinois Central railroad has secured control of the Indianapolis Southern road and will thus have a line into Indianapolis. Mr. Parry states that construction work on the Indianapolis Southern will be pushed as rapidly as possible, and says that Illinois Central trains will be running into the city over the new line early in 1905.

Opie Read, the novelist; Charles Eugene Banks, Madison Cawein and other writers of national repute are present at the convention of the Western Association of Writers at Winona this week. This year's meeting is the best in point of attendance that the association has held, and more writers whose names frequently appear in the tables of contents of the higher class of magazines are taking part in the proceedings. The meeting will be held all week.

HILL and Belmont were the big men in the convention yesterday but Bryan got the applause today.

The Parker crowd is still in control at St. Louis and seem to be hopeful still that they have Bryan and his followers fenced out. A few more hours will tell the story.

TOM TAGGART is not so sure that he will receive his reward for delivering the Indiana delegation to Parker, the man Wall street and the trusts picked out for the democrats to nominate.

THE ovation given to Bryan at St. Louis this afternoon was sufficient to start the cold sweat on Hill and Belmont and the whole crowd of Parker shouters. They are still afraid of the "peerless."

IN THE distribution of tickets at St. Louis the anti-Parker people got the best of the deal. Some Indiana people will come to the conclusion that Taggart lacks a whole lot of being the whole show. He failed to get them tickets.

TONIGHT would be a good time for the council to direct the finance committee to bring in an itemized statement of the water works litigation expense from the beginning up to the present time. Any good business man having such a suit in court would want to know what it was costing. The taxpayers are just as deeply interested in this and would like to know the total cost to them up to date.

TWO SESSIONS TODAY.

Great Ovation to Bryan at Afternoon Session.

St. LOUIS, Mo., July 7.—The democratic convention was called to order at 10:12 this morning by Chairman Williams. Prayer was offered by Archbishop John J. Glennon, of St. Louis.

Thos. F. Grady, of New York, read the report of the committee on rules and order of business.

The convention discussed the status of delegates from Porto Rico and the Philippines. Chair refused to recognize a delegate from the Philippines, holding that it was not a member of the convention. The convention favored the report of the committee to seat Porto Rico delegates.

Chairman Williams had difficulty in maintaining order. Convention very noisy all the time.

The committees on platform and credentials reported that they would not be ready to report until afternoon.

Convention adjourned until 2 p. m. Champ Clark has been chosen permanent chairman of the convention by the committee on organization. The committee first selected Senator Bailly of Texas, over Clark, by a vote of 18 to 16, but Bailly declined.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Convention called to order a few minutes after 2 o'clock.

2:15—Bryan's entrance to hall caused prolonged applause. The reception being tendered Bryan is something remarkable. The applause grows greater every minute and is joined in from all corners.

Standards of states are gathering about Bryan. Intense excitement prevails, equaling that at his nomination at Chicago.

2:40—There is no let up to the enthusiasm for Bryan, which knows no bounds.

The Georgia Parker banner brought to the front and taken in charge by a New York man.

Tremendous effort being made to stem the Bryan stampede.

3:00—Demonstration in honor of Bryan greater than when he was nominated in 1896. It has now lasted over 40 minutes and still continues well beyond description.

Order finally being secured the report of committee on credentials called for. Chairman of Tennessee delegation read the report. Bryan takes the platform. Great applause. Parker's daughter on the platform shakes hands with Bryan. Band plays "My Maryland" and audience joins in chorus.

Bryan rises to read the minority report on contested Illinois delegation and is again applauded. He reads the report and is cheered again.

Bryan asks that 15 minutes be given each side for discussion and chair recognizes Bryan who will speak for the minority report.

Bryan amidst tremendous applause says he hopes a platform will be reported that will be the mouthpiece of a united party.

BEHIND HEARST BADGES.

Seba Barnes and Others Bought Tickets to the Big Democratic Show.

W. H. Blodgett has the following to say in the Indianapolis News about an unsuccessful scheme of S. A. Barnes and some other Indiana people at St. Louis to get admission tickets to the Hill Belmont Democratic circus:

"The funniest thing that has happened at a convention for years took place last evening when three Indiana men attempted to hold up National Secretary Walsh Goaded almost to desperation by the demands of his constituents for tickets, J. F. Cox, delegate from the Fourth district, hit upon a plan that he thought was sure to work. Mr. Cox, George W. Caldwell, of Columbus, and S. A. Barnes, a prominent attorney of Seymour, plastered themselves with Hearst badges and after a good deal of trouble got into Mr. Walsh's room at the Jefferson.

There, in plain view, were great packages of tickets in long slender envelopes, addressed to the delegation for which they were intended.

"It was so easy that it was just like taking candy from children. Mr. Cox and Mr. Caldwell took Secretary Walsh into one corner and related the fiendish behavior of the Parker men, how certain so-called leaders were securing tickets and using them to advance the cause of Parker, while the supporters of Hearst were not even allowed to look.

"Mr. Walsh was all sympathy, and declared that while he was anxious to aid them and their friends, he could do nothing until later in the night. All the time that Mr. Walsh was consulting with Mr. Cox and Mr. Caldwell, Mr. Barnes was slipping the long, slender envelopes into his clothes, and when he got out of the room and streaked it for the Southern Hotel he looked like a feather pillow. Once inside his room Barnes covered up the keyhole and unloaded his plunder. In fiendish haste he tore open one of the envelopes and inside was a circular letter signed by Richmond P. Hobson, written when the Merrimac hero was running for congress. The long, slender envelopes were "dummies," fixed up for just such a scheme as this. The Indiana crowd had a good laugh at the crestfallen ticket hunters."

Chairman O'Brien was the hottest from Indiana today. He made application three weeks ago for tickets for Congressman Zenor, of the Third district, Miers, of the Second, and Robinson, of the Twelfth, and Lincoln Dixon, who is the democratic nominee from the Fourth. Every application was turned down and Indiana's democratic delegation in congress is now trying to get simple admission tickets to the gallery without much show of success."

Thomas M. Honan, of Seymour, is seeing to it that no Missouri belle steals Joe Shea."

A WONDERFUL INSECT.

Gas Companies Not Wanted Where the Cucujo Flourishes.

Have you ever heard of the cucujo? If you are one of those unfortunate who are in the habit of grumbling at gas bills you will wish that the place was swarming with cucujos, so that the gas companies might be circumvented. The cucujo is the firefly of the tropics, and it is the most brilliant of the whole tribe of light giving insects or animals. Thirty-eight of them yield one candle power.

Photographs have been printed by two minute exposure of bromide plates to their illumination. People in Cuba confine them in paper lanterns for going about the country at night or for indoor lighting. Sometimes they attach one of the insects to each foot for traveling in the dark to serve as a guide to the path; also they use them as ornaments for the dress and hair.

Cucujos are beetles beginning life as grubs. Skipjacks or springtails they are sometimes called because when placed on their backs they jump over with a clicking sound.

A small species of the same family is found in Florida and Texas. They have two luminous spots on the thorax and another on the abdomen. Damp evenings are most favorable to the light giving, the object of which is presumably to attract a mate. The young larvae feed largely on snails, to which their bite is poisonous. The luminous organs are developed before the insects leave the eggs.

Now, a theory formerly held was that these fireflies stored up light in the daytime for emission at night, as is done by the so called luminous paint of calcium sulphide. But it was found that they shone as brightly as ever after being confined for ten days in darkness. Some that were carried from Cuba to Havre in the pitch black hull of a vessel were brilliant on their arrival.

A more striking disproof, however, was afforded by a batch of larvae hatched in the dark from eggs laid in the dark on a piece of rotten wood, the young insects being kept in darkness for the first six months of their lives. They shone as brilliantly as any of the other fireflies.—Golden Penny.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by C. W. Milhous.

AN ABLE JUDGE

Conscientious Devotion to Duty Has Characterized Indiana Jurist.

John V. Hadley was born on a farm in Hendricks county, Indiana, Oct. 31, 1843. He left Butler University in 1861, at the close of his sophomore year, and joined the army as a private in the Seventh Indiana infantry. He was wounded in the second battle of Bull Run August 29, 1862. In November, 1862, he was promoted from the ranks to a first lieutenant, and was shortly thereafter detailed on the staff of General James C. Rice. He was again seriously wounded at the Battle of the Wilderness, May 5, 1864, and left upon the field as mortally injured. He was afterward conveyed to the enemy to a Confederate field hospital, from which hospital he escaped, but after two days' efforts in trying to gain the Union lines was recaptured and sent south, and was a prisoner at Macon and Savannah, Ga., and Charleston and Columbia, S. C., from which latter place he escaped on the 4th day of November, 1864, with three others and successfully entered the Union lines at Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 10, 1864. An account of this exploit was published by Charles Scribner's Sons in 1898 in a neat volume of the Ivory Series, entitled "Seven Months a Prisoner," the dedication of which volume is to his mother in these words: "To the memory of my widowed mother, who bore the chief burden of sorrow while the events chronicled herein were passing, this volume is affectionately inscribed."

Judge Hadley was discharged from the army in 1865, and upon his return to civil life at once began the study of law. He was admitted to the bar in June, 1866, married and settled in Danville. He continued practicing his profession in that city until the fall of 1888, when he was elected to the circuit bench of Marion and Hendricks counties. Upon the division of the circuit he was re-elected to the Hendricks Circuit Bench in 1894, and from that to the Supreme Bench in 1898. His service on the Supreme Bench has been characterized by a spirit of conscientious devotion to duty. Judge Hadley has demonstrated unusual legal ability and the possession of the judicial temperament, and has won the confidence and esteem of all those having to do with the affairs of the Supreme Court.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS

A new office, that of chief train dispatcher, has been created by the Southern Indiana since the institution of its new schedule. J. V. Bell, who has formerly been train dispatcher and chief clerk to the trainmaster, has been given the position. Mr. Bell, who will have his headquarters in Terre Haute, has been with the company for a number of years.

Ed Thornton, a brakeman on the Pennsylvania lines, was probably seriously injured in the yards north of Columbus yesterday. He was working with a cut of cars and while making a coupling the cars bumped, catching him between them. He was pinched between the two cars for a short time and was very faint when taken out. The switch engine took him into Columbus.

Osgood People Pleased.

In speaking of Rev. W. C. Martin's address at Osgood on the Fourth of July, the Osgood Journal says: "The prominent feature of the day was the oration of W. C. Martin. His subject was 'Old Glory' and those who were fortunate enough to hear him certainly enjoyed an intellectual feast. W. C. Martin is popular with our people and is sure of a good hearing when he comes again."

Horse Training.

Prof. J. Beery opened his horse taming exhibition on the Peter lot on West Second street last night with good attendance. Several horses were handled and showed his remarkable power over the animals. Prof. Beery takes any horses brought in, including bronchos and mustangs, that balk, kick, scare, shy, bite or have any bad traits and makes them tractable and easily managed, free of charge. Tonight ladies are admitted free. Admission 15 cents.

Fatal to Stock.

From adjoining counties comes the report of a new and particularly fatal disease that is prevailing among stock, hogs in particular being affected. The malady resembles lockjaw and the animal, after showing signs of infection, soon dies in terrible agony, and from the first is unable to eat, or drink, or to have medicine administered, its mouth being tightly closed. The animal stricken with the plague seems to have a desire to eat and drink and makes strenuous efforts to do so, but is prevented by the apparently locked jaws. Veterinarians say the disease is mysterious and unlike any known in their practice. As every animal afflicted dies, the epidemic is causing something of a sensation among stock raisers.—Columbus Republican.

Newspaper Changes.

J. A. Kemp has sold the Salem Leader to Editor Pro., of English, Ind. Mr. Kemp will probably go West.

To give the readers of combined newspapers an impartial service, Mr. Montgomery will issue the daily as the Tribune, and many improvements are contemplated. Mr. Montgomery is president of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association and is a member of the executive committee of the National Editorial Association. The Tribune Publishing company, formerly owners of the Daily Tribune, will operate a job printing business in connection with the Weekly Herald.

Important to Teachers.

Jackson County Board of Education ruled that all teachers must have license before the County Institute. The July examination will be the last opportunity before Institute, hence, all teachers, who have not license, should avail themselves of this opportunity as the rule will be enforced. There will be no special examination this year, and teachers will not be permitted to begin teaching without a valid license.

Respectfully,
J. E. PAYNE,
Co. Supt. of Jackson Co.

Sermons Suggested.

There's a text for a couple of sermons in this: "Many a woman," says one newspaper man, "goes out shopping dressed in silk and enveloped in perfume, whose hard working husband hasn't had a new suit of clothes or a decent meal in five years." "Yes," answered another, "and many a loafer stands on the street with a sinking pipe in his face, his tank full of booze and his mouth full of profanity, whose hard working wife hasn't had a new dress or a kind word since she was married."—Ex.

Baptist Meetings Interrupted.

A very large audience gathered last night to hear Mr. Lehigh and all were abundantly rewarded with a strong, lucid and entertaining sermon on "Recasting the Net." It was a message to be long remembered.

During the service a telegram came to him from a brother in Brockville, Ontario, reading "Come at once." It was handed him at the conclusion of the sermon, and he went out immediately and took the 9:52 train north though he did not and probably does not yet know what the trouble is at his father's home. It has been learned here today, though, that his mother is critically ill of pneumonia and may not live until his arrival.

The pastor decided to close the meetings until Mr. Lehigh can return to resume them which may be in a week or so. The interest developed is very marked and it is believed large fruitage will result.
